

First you should look at the sitting area at the front of the house. That's where you'll find an orc all by himself. His final action was to separate from his mate. The last thing you should do is be too aggressive. Offer him the tail of a killer whale. If pleased he'll give you the penultimate petal of delicate flower. If he is displeased he'll give you his second to last quilled animal.

Unfortunately, the ritual to drive out his demons is the last thing you want to do. You'll see a line of cars approach a second later. The first to emerge carries a burning wooden stick. It is another lone orc. You might think witchcraft is at an end. But he'll have two marks where a fireball has burnt him. You'll just catch the last note of music that sounds symphonic. In the middle of all of this you'll see a female wizard.

What will she bring you?